

Community AIDS Partnership

Community Planning and Initiatives

In addition to a 85 year history of providing funding for more than 85 non-profit agencies in our community, United Way of Central Alabama identifies special areas of unmet need and collaborates with community partners to address root causes.

Together, United Way and community partners develop and implement special initiatives to make positive changes that enhance the quality of life for thousands of Alabamians.

United Way of Central Alabama's Community AIDS Partnership helps provide on-going services for people living with HIV/AIDS in Alabama through the Ryan White Comprehensive AIDS Resources Emergency (CARE) Act.

United Way was selected by the Alabama Department of Public Health to serve as the lead/fiscal agent in charge of administering and implementing the strategy for achieving the goals and objectives of the program.

Each year more than 5,000 clients receive case management, medial care, mental health care, oral care and transportation assistance through 15 service providers statewide.
